

T O W N H O U S E

The background of the image is a photograph of a weathered brick wall. The top portion of the wall is covered in a layer of light-colored, peeling plaster or paint. Below this, the red bricks are exposed, showing signs of age and wear. There are several large, irregular patches of grey concrete or plaster that appear to be applied over the bricks, particularly in the lower half of the image. The overall texture is rough and aged.
